

Why You Should You Have a
Destination Wedding?

Planning a wedding in paradise is really amazing for many reasons.

Let me share just a few:

♥ You want your planning to stress free and easy. You want to enjoy your engagement and not stress over planning your wedding. I know whether you're having a traditional or a destination wedding, it can be nightmare trying to plan it by yourself. Since most resorts have on-site adding coordinators, I work with them, on your behalf, so your destination ceremony can less stressful to design. And of course, you are kept updated the entire time, of course, it's your ceremony!!

♥ You've always dreamed your wedding would be in a beautiful, romantic location. Maybe you considered a resort or destination that you previously vacationed, like the Caribbean or Mexico. You had such great memories and would like to relive that feeling again. Maybe you loved the culture and envisioned your wedding there. So a destination wedding might be perfect for you.

♥ You would like to keep costs low and in many cases, save money. No one can tell you that destination weddings cost less than a traditional wedding. But they can't say it costs more either. But it is easier to keep costs in check with a destination wedding. The reason why? You're more likely to be happy with a small bouquet of local flowers that resort offers, compared to visiting several florists at home and having them tempt you with a more exotic and expensive bouquet.

♥ You're looking for something different than what your friends did for their wedding or something less traditional. You've been to lots and lots of weddings and you know you want something completely different than what your friends and family had. But still have all the options, plus many more for your ceremony, ie: Catholic ceremony. Someplace warm and unforgettable that you always remember. Is that about right?

LET'S TALK PRACTICAL

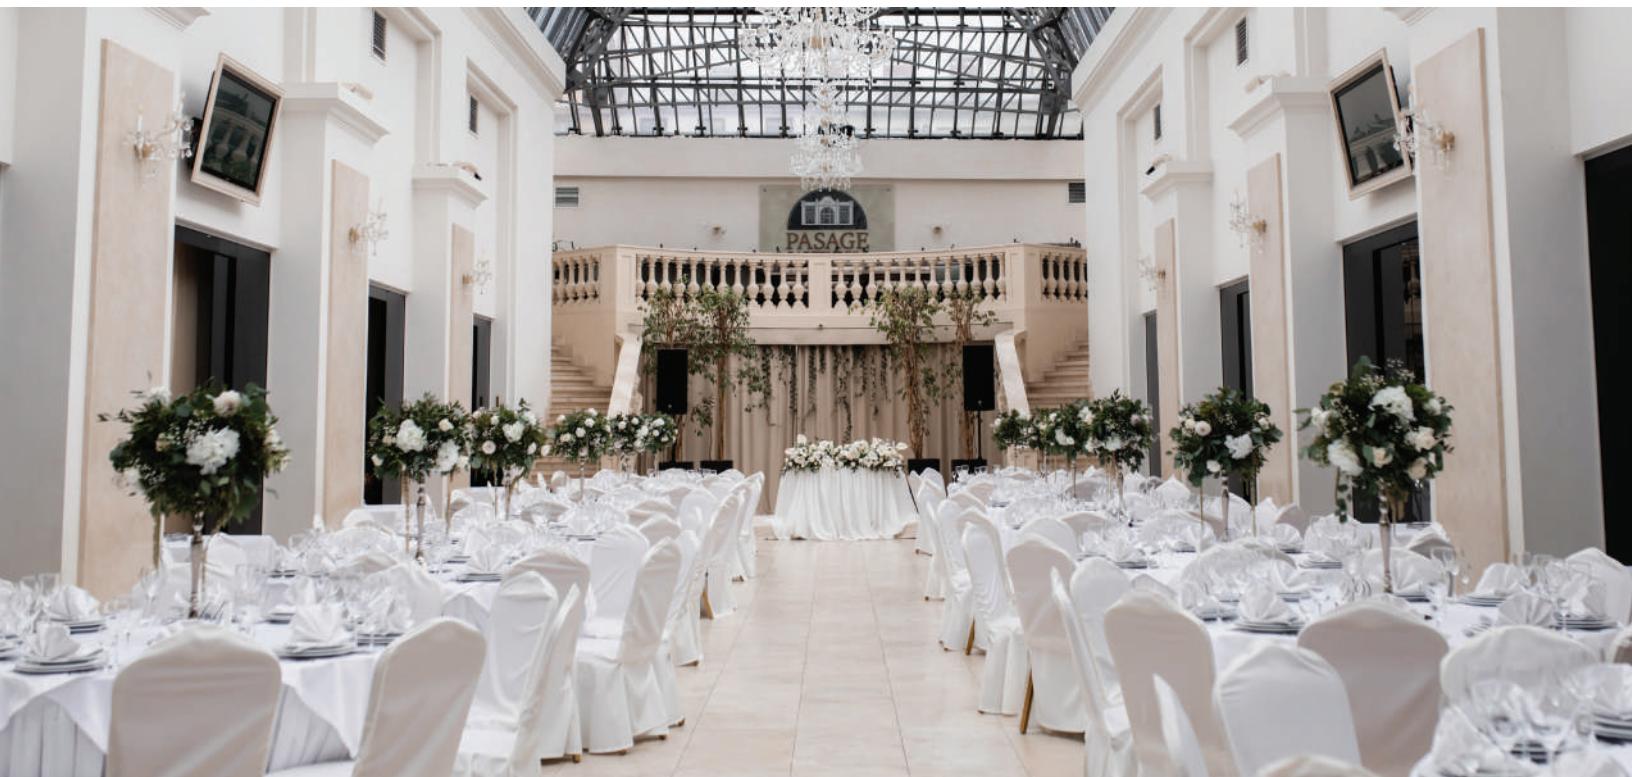

Wow!! So it all sounds too good to be true, right? A Once-In-A-Lifetime experience. A destination wedding still takes detailed planning, just like a traditional wedding. There are 3 things you need to consider:

- ♥ Speak with your friends and family before you decide to have a Destination Wedding. Take time to speak with your possible guests to make sure they are willing to travel and/or able to your wedding. It wouldn't be smart to plan a destination wedding, if your guests aren't able to attend. But trust me, many will want to travel to an exotic location, relax and enjoy celebrating your upcoming nuptials.
- ♥ Begin as early as possible. This gives you time to find the right destination. You may pick a destination and learn he pricing is not what you thought or does not have the availability. And remember, you need to give your guests time to get passports, make payments on travel, and get time off from work. I recommend 12 to 18 months.
- ♥ Good communication. I want to hear all about the ideas for your unforgettable dream wedding. We will talk about everything from start to finish. Knowing what you want and want to spend, I will help you find the right destination and amenities. I have the knowledge of many destinations and contacts at the resorts wedding departments. Maybe your first resort is not available, but I have the experience and knowledge to provide you with or resorts that will meet or exceed your exceptions.

Just A Couple More Things

You will need to get you and your guests to your wedding. Letting your guests book on their own, many problems could arise. They may fly into the wrong airport, book at the wrong resort, pay way too much for their rooms or even forget the book transfers to and from the airport to the resort. That's where I can help you and your guests.

No matter how far in advance and how well you get the information about your destination wedding to your guests, some will not be able to attend. You could plan a reception once you arrive back home. Or some resorts can do virtual weddings. Make sure to have photos and/or videos of your wedding so they can enjoy your special day.

What To Do Next And How To Get Everything Booked

If you have already done some research and believe you have found "the one" resort where you would like to get married, you are ahead of the game. Now view their website and find out if they have a wedding coordinator and what you should do next. But if you're still not sure where, what destination, (the Caribbean, Mexico, Jamaica, Hawaii, St. Lucia, Dominican Republic) or the venue, (beach, roof top, gazebo, or beautiful stairs), you should work with a certified romance travel specialist, like me!!
